at a Locarno-type under-ding with the Soviet Union the future security of both sia and Germany (mutual antess against aggression) greement on German unity as in alternative to the integra-ion of Western and Eastern

THERE is, of course, no point in any Locarno-type of arrangement for the mutual sesurity of both Russia and Germany unless it refers to a united Germany which would not be dominated by Russia. In other words the new Locarno would form part of the peace settlement with a reunited Ger-many — or rather would form

THE British Prime Minister's suggestion of a Locarno arrangement coupled with his call for informed high level talks does not vibiate in form the Western position that there can be no peace securitions without a legitimate German partner, but it meets in substance the Russian desire to talk first of all about security guasantees in case German unity should come about Moreover, while expressing determination to go shead with the Western integration treaties and to be becoming the foreign currency. The choice of keeping it will also be given to exporters who when it purchased the currency. The choice of keeping it will also be given to exporters who were under a barter system. For their industries, while it they sell the foreign currency, they will receive an 80% premium over and about security guasantees in case German unity should come about Moreover, while exporters will also be able to buy foreign currency from the Exporters will also be able to buy foreign currency. The choice of keeping it will also be given to exporters who were under a barter system. For their exports, special rates between the dollar and the currency of the country with whom they trade, will be fixed from the fixed from tuation, such a solution could the the form of all the Power unranteeing Germany against greation by any of them, and the same time guaranteeing ch other against any revival
